Outskirts Press, United States, 2010. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 216 x 140 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Born in rural Eastern North Carolina of parents near poverty, Chris begins his story of his early years and about the love so deeply shared between his Mama and himself. As the first child of a family that would eventually grow to five, Chris remembers the early years when he didn't have to share his mother's love with other siblings. Time alone with his mother was all that mattered, and she, likewise, expressed what mattered to her: On a beautiful day the sixth of June, nineteen years ago, a beautiful baby came to brighten our home and oh! How we loved him so. Once his baby sister was born into the family, Chris jealousy of his mother's love for the newborn forced him to look elsewhere to find a repository for his love. He found it next door at his Grandma's. Chris worshiped his Grandma Pittman and she gave that love and attention back to him until Chris had to deal with his first loss of love to death. Chris continues his story into adolescence dreaming of escaping his rural world defined by cornfields, vegetable gardens and his mama's religion, a world that was warm, secure and safe, yet confining, confusing and suffocating. During these young years, he confronts his dad's addiction to prescription drugs and his perceived need to take on the heavy responsibility as head of the family. Adding to the uncertainty and confusion already surrounding him, he was startled to realize he was attracted to men, a state he intuitively knew would not please his mama's God and one he would wrestle with for five lonely years....
